FOREWORD

FOR this thirteenth volume of the Cyclops, we offer no apologies. There will be parts of this book which you will not like, there are parts of it which we do not like. We will ask you to touch lightly upon the features with dislikable parts, and to dwell upon those you like most.

Remember that nothing can be accomplished without work, and the staff has gained this book only by their untiring efforts.

It is hoped that this book may serve as a stimulus to those wishing to recall the days spent at N. G. A. C., and that during the years to come it may give you an accurate and true portrayal of the days that have passed.

"And what he greatly thought, he nobly did."

"Big Bad Bill is Sweet William now." We take this method of introducing golden-hearted "Bill," who is one of our champion bashful men. Bill would right gladly go to the scaffold before he would escort a young lady to a dance, but we do not hold that against him—nay, not so. That type of a man is so hard to find that it makes him stand out very distinctly. Bill believes that "Silence is golden," but not because of ignorance, for it's quite the opposite. In fact, he's one of the type of which we might say, "He that knows and knows that he knows, is wise." After hanging out with Bill the better part of the 20th century, we can truthfully sing of his praises. As he leaves school he has our heartiest good wishes.

"The triple threat man."

"Tank" has spent his last year at college wrestling with campus activities, as well as with Senior Math, and well has he acquitted himself. First, of course, comes his labors on the CYCLOPS, and that, with his class work, is enough to load any one, but "Tank" was willing to be overloaded and has worked hard as Manager of both Football and Baseball. As a little finisher, he has served a successful year as President of the Student Council. There is no need to speak of the high regard that all his fellow students hold for him, since his record is proof enough.

*"His ready speech flowed fair and free,
In phrase of gentlest courtesy."*

Robin is another old settler of the Class, and we're quite sure that his cheerful and friendly face will be missed when school begins next September. He has been a leader in campus activities for two years, and has acquitted himself well. One not lacking in that wonderful asset, personality, and with a noble and generous disposition. A boy we have been proud to know, one who has never failed a friend, and has ever been ready to assist in any movement for the betterment of the school. We wonder at his ability to hold the many honors that he has held so well, and still have time to make so many week-end trips, but possibly those week-end trips served as an inspiration for greater things. Many organizations and student activities will sorely miss his faithfulness and ability. The best wishes of many go with you as you go out into life.

"Wisdom is the principle thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting, get understanding."

Another one of the aboriginies of the Class. One of those extremely rare fellows who thinks and then speaks. He entered college here long before any of his present classmates, but dropped out of school several years, and during these years learned the value of a college education and came back with an ardent desire to get that education. To say that he came back "strongly" would be putting it mildly, for he has led practically every class he has been in since he re-entered our midst, over two years ago. He is more greatly to be admired because he is a married man, and very few married men will enter the college again and complete their education. We predict a bright future for him and we all wish him well.

The big athlete in our Class who has been the outstanding man in all sports. He has played Varsity football and baseball for four years. Another example of everybody loving a "Bill," and right well does he merit the respect and admiration of all his associates. Sometimes we think Bill is rather superhuman, for in the four long years that he has been here, we have never heard a "cross word" from him, and that is a record in itself. Bill has been a steady, reliable man in all his college work, and leaves behind him an envious record. He carries the best wishes of all.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you."

If that be the case, then he has the world laughing with him, for his smile remains throughout thick and thin. That accounts for so many friends, for people cannot keep themselves from liking one who refuses to see the dark cloud. He has not been in our Class heretofore, since he was in Senior Class last year but was unable to take the required work to graduate. We are proud of that fact for we have had the pleasure of knowing him as a classmate and a friend.

"The Shiek," Old Albert Sid. One of the most trustworthy fellows that can be found anywhere. "His word is his bond," and Sidney always has a helping hand ready if he can be of service to any one. Possibly that explains the devotion of his friends, for every one loves a sympathetic fellow. We wonder how he has made such an envious record in his scholastic work, and yet had time to be in love, but his scholastic record shows for itself, and as for the other part— Well, just ask Sidney, or perhaps a dear classmate of ours.

"Reproof on her lip, but a smile in her eye."

One of our optimists, who always has a smile for every one. In the midst of the hardest examination, it has been an inspiration to look at Myrtle, for she always has a smile for the hardest question. She has had experience already in her chosen profession, teaching, and we see no reason why she should not be a glorious success. Her unusual amiability has made her a host of friends.

Senior Class History

"Who loves not knowledge? Who shall rail against her beauty? May she mix with men and prosper; Who shall fill her pillars? Let her work prevail.

SENIORS—Truly a word to strike awe into the hearts of all college men, but what a vastly different meaning it has to Seniors than to undergraduates. To a Senior the word means that he has reached the pinnacle of his college career, that nearly all of his school days lie behind him, and for the first time he can look closely into the future with no college work between him and his well-laid plans for the future.

As we go back over the days of our first and second and third years, it is with wonder that we realize the utter thoughtlessness and the abandon of young college men. What hapened to our Freshman year, to our Sophomore year? It is hard to remember, only that the time passed slowly. We remember that we had a great many upperclassmen to admire, to seek to model after. To those upperclassmen we were willing to leave the burden of college activities, to excuse ourselves by the fact that they were better fitted. Now we are Seniors, and our models are gone. The question comes: "Are we like those we sought to pattern after? Are we pleased with our records of the past years. Are we fitted to take the place, the many duties of Seniors in the college? All these and many other questions have arisen, and they can only be answered from our own heart.

The large class that started for the long sought goal of a college diploma has dwindled and dwindled until there is only a small group that has toiled and remained faithfully for four years together, all intent on the same goal. The fact that many have fallen by the wayside, never to finish their education, has only tended to spur us on, with the realization that we have accomplished a difficult task and that we have gained our first real victory in life.

As Sophomores we still had a large class and were not so intimately associated as in our Junior and Senior years. And when we finally reached the Junior class there was still a marked decrease in numbers, but as Juniors we had our first real insight into college life proper, and began to think more seriously as we gradually took our place in the activities of the college, and to see the countless details to be taken into consideration in the existence of a college. The Junior year, too, passed by rapidly, and before we could realize it another class had graduated, and left us—The next graduating class—Seniors.

As Seniors we realize more and more the advantages we have had for college work whether they were taken or not. In a small town with no outside influences to detract from the scholastic work, in a wonderful climate, and with a gift that few college men receive, that gift of close association with the Instructors and with each other. By virtue of small classes the Instructor can come into closer contact with each man, and have a greater influence on him. And not of least importance is the close association of students which is as valuable as the scholastic work. We believe that each man as he goes out is as pleased with the knowledge of mankind gained by association as of the actual knowledge gained from books. But understanding of mankind, and understanding ourselves is knowledge, and "Who Loves Not Knowledge?"

We have at last reached the pinnacle, the attainment of which has required persistent efforts since the beginning of our college career. In a way we are hoping that we have come to the close of our college work, for we are just ready to really begin life, but mingled with that happiness is sadness. We realize that we must part with friends and associates possibly for life, and to leave the school with its associations and traditions. A great many times in the future we shall look back to the years spent at college in Dahlongega with nothing but happy memories; the pleasant memories overshadowing the unpleasant ones, with friendship for everyone, and with hearty good wishes for the school.

J. ROBIN BROOKSHER, Senior Class Historian.

Class Prophecy

IN a beautiful evening in the month of May after a strenuous days work, I came home too tired for any further duties. I eagerly partook of my evening meal—retired to my private office and as I sat there lazily dozing over my “pipe,” this thought came to my mind as a whirlwind. Here, it is almost commencement time at the dear old N. G. A. C., my Alma Mater. I began to recall my happy school days there. Next followed the congenial classmates of 1925. I became so eager for news of them, that I immediately tuned in on Station YMBZ. The broad-casting station of N. G. A. C.

To my surprise they were speaking of the whereabouts of the class of '25, the old class I learned to love so well, and this is what I heard.

Tankersley after graduation finally decided to study medicine. He has done great work along this line. In fact, he is not only one of the best physicians in Honolulu, but his work is among the natives and needy class who are not able to secure medical attention.

Myrtle Davis, for a number of years, did educational work throughout the states of Oklahoma and Iowa. Great was her success and praise of her methods came from all the leading educators. But she was not to do such work always. The sweet and amiable disposition which characterized her during her college days became sweeter as she grew older. This was true to such an extent that she won the hearts of many, and finally she yielded to the pleadings of one and is now leading a happy, quiet home life with her husband who is Dean of “The University of Illinois.”

McKee on leaving N. G. A. C. spent some time in Heidelberg University. Returning to U. S. he became very active in politics. In 1938 he was elected a member of the 70th Congress and quickly forged his way to the front. He was a leader in the 75th Congress of the Democratic Party and was Speaker of the house in the 78th Congress, and 1944 was elected Senator from Georgia.

The announcer is saying that Culbertson after pursuing his commerce course at some great Northern University, finally settled down in his native town, Wauchula, Fla. Here he is set up as the local capitalist and the greatest success is accompanying him in his lately chosen work. He is surrounded by his happy wife and four children and is enjoying life.

Remembering Robin Booksher's eagerness for all subjects pertaining to international law and diplomacy I was not surprised when I heard that he had gone into the Consular service after graduation. His strictness to duties, his patriotic devotion, his diplomatic tact, has won for him the high rank in the Consular service that he now holds. We find that our old friend and classmate is now Ambassador to France.

It was with a thrill of pleasure when I heard that the two outstanding athletes of the class have risen to great heights in organized baseball, that the two were the outstanding stars in the last world's series and are regarded as two of the best performers in the American League today: That their names are on the lips of every American baseball fan. I am truly proud that the two great baseball stars were no other than Holden and Parham.

I was always assured that A. W. Ash would be a success in life and I find that my confidence in his ability is not shaken. For in going over the old class roll A. W. Ash's name comes through the air as one of the greatest educators of the present day. Immediately after graduation he set to work in his chosen profession—Educational work, and his rise was meteoric. He is now state school superintendent of Colorado and is rising with the Golden West.

Johnson, after finishing school, went to South America where he is now mining in the Southern Andes. This, however, is rather to be expected since he, while a student at N. G. A. C., was often found on Crown Mountain observing minerals in their various forms. It gave me a thrill to hear of his important holdings in one of the largest mining company's in South America.

Among the other thrills and joys received at this time, none pleased me better than to hear of the great success of our esteemed friend and fellow student C. E. Medlock. Due to the fact that he, while a student at N. G. A. C., developed such a strong foundation in his commercial subjects, was enabled to reach the "utmost round" in the association of accountants. In fact he is known far and wide for the benefits given and service rendered to the commercial world.

Lastly, I heard them announce my own career since I graduated, how I at first pursued Post Graduate work in the University of Frieberg for the two years '26 and '27. Then going to South America I accepted a position with an exporting company, remaining with them 25 years during which time I became President of the company, retiring from active business only last year.

This concluded the history of the Senior Class of '25. The College

CYCLOPS

Orchestra at once began to play the beautiful waltz, "I'm drifting back to dreamland." Before they had finished half the piece I was asleep only to be awakened a few minutes later by the announcer who was saying, "Station YMBZ, now signing off for the night, Good Night."

Junior Meditations

We're a-studying of Literature
As hard as e'er we can;
We dote on Revolutions
And the Brotherhood of Man.

We're returning to the People
With a truly Lyric Cry;
And for Democratic Spirit
We'd lay us down and die.

We're a-reading of Psychology
To find out why we be;
And a-learning that External Worlds
Lie wholly in the Me.

We don't believe in Matter,
And of Mind we're not quite sure;
We're inclined to think Uncertainties
Most likely to endure.

We're a-looking at Fine Pictures
Made by People what are dead;
And we criticize Cathedrals
With a Ruskin at our head.

We're a-growing awful learned—
There's a lots more of the kind—
We'll get next year in Senior
If we use our feeble minds.

CAPTAIN R. S. PARHAM End

Dahlonge's only triple threat man, being especially adept at punting, passing, and running. Besides his defensive cunning and offensive value, he often placed the hopes of his Alma Mater at rest by sending a long spiraling punt far from the danger zone. A truly great captain and an invincible athlete.

ALLEN—Guard

A tower of strength on defense, and a demon on offense. This courageous athlete has done much for the success of the '24 team.

GOWER—End

A hard and consistent battler, a wizard at receiving passes, and a good man to cover Captain Parham's punts.

HOLLINGSWORTH—Tackle

His true worth was not in his strength alone, but in his combined football sense and ability to properly diagnose a play. Smashing opposing linesmen and killing the runner in the back-field was his chief joy on the field.

CYCLOPS

HOLDEN—Quarter

His value as a tosser of forward passes cannot be over-estimated. His field judgment and diagnosis of opposing plays are practically always correct. Bill put the dash and charge into the backfield necessary for ground-gaining.

MEDLOCK—Halfback

Although he never gained his true form the entire season, he was a great help to the team. On the field, he is one of the fastest of men. His running with the ball is a sensation.

MADDOX, H. H.—Fullback

"Bullet" was on the injured list most of the season, but he is a hard biter and a pile-driving piece of football plunder when he is right. Ask the scrub line; they know.

MADDOX, C. V.—Tackle

A steady performer, both offensive and defensive. Finds a chief delight in breaking through and wrecking some would-be ground gainer.

CYCLOPS

STROUP—Halfback

Another who enjoys dumping or smashing interference. A good defensive man, but his value is great as an offensive star. His side stepping, twisting, circling motions are responsible for many large gains.

BAKER—Guard

"Fat" enjoys taking his superfluous merriment out on some unfortunate player opposite him. A hard fighter, and a good man for the position.

TURNER—Fullback

A lad who has unlimited possibilities as a ground gainer through the line. He smashes with full force, and it takes more than an ordinary line to stop him. His playing in the Georgia and Piedmont games is especially commendable.

CALHOUN—Halfback

A consistent gainer through the line, but his real value lay in his ability to circle the ends for large gains. His first year, but one of the best halves on the team. His sixty-five yard run against Georgia was a treat for any one.

CYCLOPS

DOUGLAS—Guard

Injuries kept him out part of the season, but he proved to be a gallant fighter and a hard worker.

PARHAM, W. L.—Center

The hardest worker on the line. "Blondy" with his dominant spirit, his peerless fighting ability, always giving every ounce of strength for victory, has well earned his position on the team.

HAWKINS—End

"Little but loud" fits him exactly. His spunk and grit made up for his lack of weight, and he always went in fighting and came out ready for the next clash. A valuable flanksmen, good at dumping interference and open tackling.

COOPER—Center and Guard

Opponents have found him to be immovable against their mighty thrusts. Used at guard in some games because of his willingness to mix in the tumult of human clashes.

*BELL—Halfback

Smashing off-tackle and leading trick plays are his greatest assets. He doesn't know what "give up" means, and possesses the greatest amount of spunk and grit on the team. A valuable defensive player, too.

*JACKSON—Tackle

Dahlonge's hardest tackler. Although out of several games because of injuries, this plucky star has well earned his coveted "D". His unlimited fighting makes him a good man for any team.

FOOTBALL TEAM, '24

Football

WARMING down upon the field like a huge army of hornets, answering with full force to the clarion call of duty, the Blue-jacket aggregation of gridiron warriors have made a football history for Dahlonaga, not in victories, for victory is the least essential thing, but as a representative of their faith in the college and her principles, giving and taking without asking quarter, striving manfully to uphold the fighting standard and traditional honors handed down by their predecessors, not once whimpering or suffering openly.

Somehow we are justly proud of the '24 eleven. Going into season without a schedule, with only two letter men back for action, Coaches Cobb and Bush faced a problem of unsurmountable difficulty. Grimly determined to give their very best for the success of the team and the good of the College, they unflinchingly prepared to impart the principles and foundation of football to the abundant material on hand.

Their task has been a difficult one, and they have succeeded nobly. They placed on the field a fighting team as well as a drilled unit, working roughly at first, but finally reaching that glorious climax known as Completion. Their efforts have been as one, each sharing the honors of victory, and suffering together silently, bitterly, the piercing pangs of an honorable and glorious defeat.

Going into the opening game of the season with an uncertain line and an unknown combination of backfield material, our gallant lads of the Blue and White gave their best for victory, a victory which never came. "Red" Barron's prep school eleven dealt out a severe drubbing, not in the score, but in the knowledge of being defeated by a prep gridiron machine.

Other defeats came, glorious in a measure, but stinging and crushing the very hearts of the sturdy lads who represented their mountain College. As a member of the team said after that memorable game with the Georgia Reserves, "There was no individual star, just eleven men giving their best for an impossible victory."

Finally came the game with Piedmont, our greatest and deadliest rival. Forced on by thoughts of a 6 to 0 defeat from the blood-thirsty Blue-jackets the year before, the Demorest lads took Gainesville by storm, eager to avenge their previous upset, and score a triumphant victory, regardless of personal injury to the individuals of the team.

On the other hand, our Dahlongega representatives calmly awaited the coming battle, not over-confident, but feeling sure of themselves and their ability to die fighting.

From start to finish the game was never in doubt, though it seemed we could never push over a touchdown. After several futile efforts to score by the aerial route, Captain Parham, dauntless hero of the game, fell back to the twenty yard line and calmly drop-kicked a perfect field goal. This small score gave Dahlongega a victory and once more sent the Piedmont colors downward, with their gay streamers trailing in the dust of a noble and exalted victory.

The team of '24 did not know all the football possible, nor did they accomplish the blazing brilliance of some of their forerunners, nor did they bring honor and credit to their college by presenting a goodly number of enemy scalps to the athletic council, but, believe it or not, they knew how to fight unselfishly, and that, in itself, is an unapproachable credit which we challenge any institution or person to defy.

W. E. READ, JR., Athletic Editor.

Basket-Ball

HOUGH not equipped with an indoor court and gymnasium, basketball took its turn here as a major college sport, and the "Y" team placed on the court by the locals has played some interesting games.

Talent for the indoor sport at this institution is very marked, as we have boys from high and prep schools who would boast Dahlonga's hopes for publicity if they were given an opportunity to display their ability as conquerer.

The "Y" team, composed of R. S. Parham, W. L. Parham, C. E. Barrett, N. P. Malcolm, L. G. Knight, and D. H. Cooper who played several contests, breaking even in games. Their playing was excellent, considering the amount of practice taken without the aid of a coach. Several members of the team showed unusual ability in handling the sphere, and it is hoped their full ability will be shown next winter.

The Freshmen, also, placed a team on the court, winning their two games by close scores, each game going into extra periods. Members of the "Rat" team were: Rat Eney, Rat Wheeler, Rat Taylor, Rat Mangham, Rat Walker, and Rat Wood.

Baseball

INTEREST in baseball at the North Georgia Agricultural College for this year has mounted higher than ever before, resulting in having one of the best diamond teams ever to represent this institution. Coach Cobb, who is a great baseball player, has placed on the field one of the best teams possible, making promising players out of men who showed only an average ability at the start of the season.

First call for candidates was issued on March 2, and fifty athletes responded, each seeking to earn a berth on a college nine. Many were disappointed, falling by the wayside, while others battled onward, surmounting many difficulties of an impossible nature, reaching however, in the end, their one ambition, namely,—to play college baseball.

Five letter men answered the first call, four outfielders and one infielder. The outfielders were Parham, Hill, Medlock and Read, while the infielder was none other than "Wee Bill" Holden himself, Captain of the '24 team.

Much credit must go to Manager Tankersley, who is responsible for the splendid schedule for the team. One trip into Florida, embracing two games with Ft. Benning, two with the University of Florida, and three with Stetson University. Also another trip into South Carolina, besides numerous shorter trips,, kept the team on the jump, making each man fight hard to keep a regular place.

Coach Cobb, also, must come in for a lion's share of credit. Without his experience he could not be the coach that he is, and without his coaching the team could not have reached the high pinnacle of success which we have attained. To his future, then, goes the hopes and best wishes of every Bluejacket who was a member of the 1925 Base-ball team.

Some Facts About Dahlonega and N.G.A.C.

Dahlonega is one of the oldest towns in Georgia.

Over $3,000,000.00 worth of pure gold has been mined here.

Dahlonega's present courthouse was built in 1836.

The Main Building of this college stands on the foundation of an old United States gold mint.

Dahlonega is the home of the Dahlonega Nuggett, a small paper edited by Mr. W. B. Townsend, and famous throughout the United States

Dahlonega is on the National Highway between Atlanta and Asheville, N. C.

This college completes its fifty-second session in June, 1925.

N. G. A. C. is the oldest branch of the University of Georgia.

The health record at this college is without parallel.

This college has an orchard which, when complete, will have 1,200 trees, representing a great variety of fruits.

This college offers the only mining course given in the State of Georgia.

Over 7,000 young people of this State have received part, and in many cases all, of their higher education here.

This college offers five regular collegiate degrees.

This is a wonderful place.

In Conclusion

THE Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager of the CYCLOPS wish to thank all those who have aided us in the publishing of this book. Especially do we wish to thank Mr. W. L. Ellis, who voluntarily accepted a place on the Staff as Advertising Manager, relieving the other members of much worry and work.

Also do we thank those who have advertised in this book. Without this we would be unable to publish the CYCLOPS. We hope they reap much profit from their "ads."

To Mr. J. B. Gentry, of the J. P. Bell Co., we express our thanks.

Your future reference to this volume will determine whether or not we have made a success of it. We trust that you will see the large field we have attempted to cover, and, though there may be mistakes, we sincerely hope that the book as a whole will be a source of much pleasure to you now and in the years to come.

IN setting the type, printing, and binding this book, our object was not to see how quickly and cheaply we could produce the publication, but how well it could be done.

Our whole aim in this, as in all our work, is to give the greatest attention to all the details, and produce printing that will be a credit to the institutions from which the publications are issued. Our books will be just as good in the many years to come, when an annual is of greatest value, as they are to-day.
